

NCDA&CS agronomist Love honored

N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services regional agronomist Georgia Love was recently honored by the Robeson County Farm Bureau Women's Committee for her contributions to agriculture.

This was the first year for the Women of Agricultural Excellence Award.

Love serves Region 5, which includes Bladen, Brunswick, Columbus, Cumberland, Hoke, Robeson and Scotland counties. As a row crop specialist, she helps farmers in these counties troubleshoot nutrient and nematode issues, which affects crop growth and yield. She is the second female row crop specialist in North Carolina history.

Love earned two degrees from N.C. State University and began her career with Robeson County Cooperative Extension.
