Take caution when burning yard debris

The N.C. Forest Service urges residents throughout the state to think about safety and exercise caution during the spring fire season, which typically lasts statewide mid-March through mid-May.

The season coincides with when many people are getting back into their yards and doing spring cleanup that often includes burning leaves and yard debris.

The N.C. Forest Service encourages anyone considering debris burning to contact the local county forest ranger. There are many factors to consider before burning debris. The forest ranger can offer technical advice and explain what the best options are to help maximize the safety to people, property and the forest.

"Protect our natural resources by acting safely; don't burn on dry, windy days, and maintain a careful watch over a fire until it is extinguished," said Agriculture Commissioner Steve Troxler.

For people who choose to burn debris, the N.C. Forest Service urges them to adhere to the following tips to protect property and prevent wildfires:

Specialty crop grants offered by NCDA&CS

Deadline for applications is April 26

The N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services is offering about $1 million in grants to government, collegiate and non-profit agencies interested in improving the competitiveness of specialty crops across the state.

The Specialty Crop Block Grant Program is managed by the NCDA&CS and funded by the U.S. Department of Agriculture under the 2008 farm bill. Funding is available for a variety of projects related to enhancing the competitiveness of fruits and tree nuts, vegetables, culinary herbs and spices, medicinal plants, as well as nursery, floriculture and horticulture crops.

"Last year, the department awarded more than $1.1 million in grants," said Agriculture Commissioner Steve Troxler. "Those grants have already helped promote established crops like sweet potatoes, and have funded new research for hops, organic farming and other projects still getting off the ground. These funds go a long way to help small farmers diversify their crops and stay competitive."

NCDA&CS will accept grant applications starting at $20,000 from nonprofit organizations, commodity associations, state and local government agencies, colleges and universities. Grants are not available for projects that directly benefit or provide a profit to a single organization, institution or individual. The deadline is 5 p.m. April 26.

For information and an application, go to www.NCSpecialtyCropGrant.org. Questions may be directed to Jeff Camden, NCDA&CS grant administrator, at 919-707-3111 or SpecialtyCropGrant@ncagr.gov.

NCDA&CS to offer cantaloupe pilot program

Focus is on reducing potential food contamination incidents

The N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services is partnering with N.C. State University's Cooperative Extension Service to offer the N.C. cantaloupe pilot program.

The two-pronged education and outreach program will consist of a seminar in the classroom and voluntary assessment on the farm. The goal is to help cantaloupe producers develop strategies for reducing the risk of food contamination and for handling such incidents if they occur.

The NCDA&CS Food and Drug Protection Division, Marketing Division and N. C. State Cooperative Extension will conduct the seminar April 10 at the Cunningham/Lower Coastal Plain Research Station in Kinston and April 23 at the Davidson County Center in Lexington. Both sessions will take place from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The seminars are free and include lunch and refreshments, sponsored by N.C. Farm Bureau and the Carolina Farm Stewardship Association, respectively. Registration is required by April 3. Register online at www.ncmhtd.com/NCCantaloupe.

"The seminar will cover a variety of food safety topics specifically for cantaloupe producers, including sanitation, water, equipment, environmental sampling and validation," said Agriculture Commissioner Steve Troxler. "The program will also cover recovery and restoration strategies after a food contamination event, and I encourage growers to participate."

Standards inspectors help consumers save green on lawncare

As retailers stock their shelves with garden and landscaping supplies, standards inspectors with the N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services are out to make sure consumers get what they pay for at checkout.

The department employs 38 weights and measures inspectors who inspect everything from gas pumps to price scanners. The inspectors recently completed their review of mulch packers and are currently checking fertilizer plants across the state.

"We want to make sure we catch any discrepancies in items sold by weight before they hit the store shelves," said Stephen Benjamin, director of the department's Standards Division. "If you pay for a 50-pound bag of fertilizer, we want to make sure you're getting a full 50 pounds of fertilizer."

To do this, measurement inspectors visit fertilizer plants and select a sample of bagged products to weigh. Using a certified scale, the inspectors verify that the sampled bags are within the maximum allowed variance. If errors are found, they are addressed and corrected before a shipment leaves the fertilizer packer. Even minor abnormalities can add up to enormous price differences for consumers and retailers.

"If a scale is overweight, consumers aren't getting all they paid for, and if it's underweight, (See Lawncare, pg. 3)

Commissioner Troxler

In recent months, I've read several news stories about North Carolina farmers, insurance agents and claims adjusters being sentenced to prison for crop insurance fraud.

In one case, a convicted former insurance adjuster from Wilson was sentenced to four years in prison for a variety of charges related to filing false insurance claims. His sentence would have been longer had he not cooperated with investigators. He also was ordered to pay $21 million in restitution.

In another case, a Mebane insurance agent was sentenced to nine years in prison and ordered to pay $8.4 million in restitution, which is the amount prosecutors contended he received in fraudulent federal crop insurance payments. A farmer involved in the case was sentenced to one day in prison and six months of house arrest. He also had to pay $63,000 in restitution and fines.

Turns out, these cases were just the tip of a much bigger problem. The federal government has been investigating a scheme involving dozens of insurance agents, adjusters, farmers and others. They are accused of stealing at least $100 million from the federal crop insurance program. This is an embarrassment to the state of North Carolina and to all our honest farmers.

These stories should serve as a cautionary tale. Crop insurance is a useful safety net that provides growers with a measure of protection against damage from weather and pests. But claims should be filed only when there is a legitimate need.

No one should file false claims for crops that were in fact harvested and sold. It's against the law, and it's pretty obvious that prosecutors are serious about making examples of individuals who commit these crimes. As Thomas Walker, U.S. attorney for the Eastern District of North Carolina, told The Associated Press:

"We aggressively pursue these criminals just like we pursue drug dealers and other crooks."

There are other reasons to play by the rules. Fraud is harmful to the crop insurance system and the farmers who pay premiums into it. It also harms taxpayers, who end up paying most of the losses. Cases like the ones I mentioned give critics of the crop insurance program plenty of ammunition to use in pushing for its elimination.

There's no doubt that farmers face financial challenges. The cost of land, equipment, fertilizer and other inputs is volatile, commodity prices fluctuate, and credit can get tight. These pressures, coupled with difficulties in finding fraud, may proved burning permit, which can be obtained at any N.C. Forest Service office, a county-approved burning permit agent, or online at www.ncforestservice.gov.

- Check with your county fire marshal's office for local laws on burning debris. Some communities allow burning only during specified hours; others forbid it entirely.
- Check the weather. Don't burn if conditions are dry or windy.
- Consider alternatives to burning. Some yard debris such as leaves and grass may be more valuable if composted.
- Only burn natural vegetation from your property. Burning household trash or any other man-made materials is illegal. Trash should be taken to a convenience center.
- Plan burning for the late afternoon when conditions are typically less windy and more humid.
- Be prepared. Use a shovel or hoe to clear a perimeter around the area around where you plan to burn.
- Keep fire tools ready. To control the fire, you will need a hose, bucket, a steel rake and a shovel for tossing dirt on the fire.
- Never use flammable liquids such as kerosene, gasoline or diesel fuel to speed debris burning.
- Stay with your fire until it is completely out. In North Carolina, human carelessness leads to more wildfires than any other cause. In fact, debris burning is the leading cause of wildfires in the state.

Burning agriculture residue and forestland litter: In addition to the rules above, a fire line should be plowed around the area to be burned. Large fields should be separated into small plots for burning one at a time. Before doing any burning in a wooded area, contact your county ranger who will weigh all factors, explain them and offer technical advice.

Got to Be NC Festival seeks antique tractors, vendors

Space is still available for antique tractor and farm equipment hobbyists to display their machines at the Got to Be NC Festival at the State Fairgrounds May 17-19.

"The display of more than 1,000 tractors and other antique farm machinery is a highlight of the festival, and we've got room for more," said Agriculture Commissioner Steve Troxler.

Tractors in working order can also participate in the daily tractor parade through the fairgrounds. Participation is free, but pre-registration is required.

Festival organizers also have a few spots available for independent vendors and concessionaires.

Tractor registration and vendor application forms are available at www.ncagfest.com.

Organizers expect crowds of up to 100,000 over the three days of the festival. In addition to the farm equipment display, the festival will feature the N.C. Food, Wine & Beer Expo, a bluegrass band competition, a carnival and the Pig Jig, a barbecue competition that raises money for Masonic charities.

Other events at the fairgrounds that weekend include the Raleigh Flea Market, the Chatlee Boat Show and Sale in the Scott Building, the Carolina Rollergirls Derby Expo in Dorton Arena, the Independent Labrador Specialty Dog Show in the Holshouser Building and Wake County 4-H and District 4-H horse shows at the Hunt Horse Complex.

Beekeepers with bees for rent and growers interested in bee pollination services can post their information on the BeeLinked website at www.ncagr.com/beelinked. The site is hosted by the N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services and the N.C. State University Apiculture Program. Anyone interested in listing their information can do so by filling out an online Submit Your Ad form on the BeeLinked page or by contacting NCDA&CS at 919-233-8214 or by email at NCHoneybee@ncagr.gov or call NCSU at 919-515-1660. The NCDA&CS Plant Industry Division regulates the movement of agricultural or related items capable of spreading harmful insects, diseases, and other pests. Beekeepers participating in this program will be required to comply with all honey and bee industry regulations.

The Piedmont Saddle Club in Colfax will open its lighted arena every Friday from 5-9 p.m. for horse riders. The cost is $10 per horse and equine owners must provide proof of Coggins testing and sign a waiver. The events are open to the public. Contact info@piedmontsaddleclub.org for more information.

The North Carolina chapter of Re-Run, a non-profit organization that places ex-racehorses into adoptive homes, now has thoroughbred racehorses available for adoption. Thoroughbreds are versatile and do well in any number of disciplines including shows, events, fox hunting or pleasure riding, according to Elizabeth Macdonald with Re-Run. businesses end up losing product." Benjamin said. "Accuracy in commerce serves the common interest of every person and every business owner."

Benjamin, who also serves as chairman of the National Conference on Weights and Measures, offers the following tips for consumers buying fertilizer, mulch or other items sold by weight this spring:

- Make sure you can see a customer indicator on the scale. The seller and buyer must be able to see the transaction.

- Make sure the indicator is at zero before anything is placed on the scale.
- If the product is placed in a bag or container, the scale should show a negative amount before weighing to account for the weight of the container.
- Make sure you are being charged the correct price per pound.
- Always double check your receipt.
- If you experience any problems, contact the Standards Division at 919-733-3313.

The number can be found on scanners and scales at the register, as well as gas pumps across the state.

NCWM recently celebrated the efforts of state and local weights and measures inspectors during Weights and Measures Week. This commemorates the signing of the first U.S. weights and measures law by John Adams in 1799.

Best Dish in NC winners crowned

Ashten's and Bistro 42 take top spots

A panel of judges spent the summer traveling to 20 restaurants to find the best fine dining and casual dining dishes that use North Carolina products.

Ashten's in Southern Pines was named the best in the fine dining category, and Bistro 42 in Asheboro was named the best in casual dining.

Second place in the fine dining category went to The Table at Crestwood in Boone, and third place went to Deluxe in Wilmington. In the casual dining category, Kornerstone Bistro in Wilmington took second place, and Yancey House in Yanceyville took third.

This is the second time that Deluxe, The Table at Crestwood and Yancey House have placed in the Best Dish competition.

The winning dishes were:

Fine Dining

- First place: Ashten's – Asparagus strudel, N.C. mountain trout salad, Council Farms egg drop soup, braised rainbow farm lamb shoulder, pecan polenta cake with strawberries

- Second place: Table at Crestwood – Field greens with almond encrusted goat cheese, tomato bisque with crab and basil salad, Hickory Nut Gap Farms rib-eye with summer squash fries, cheese cake with wild berry compote

- Third place: Deluxe – Phil's soft shell crab

Casual Dining

- First place: Bistro 42 – Tapas style tasting menu that included pork and shrimp spring rolls, savory lump crabmeat cheese cake with pecan short crust, ox tail (beef) agnolotti with beurre fondue, and lavender-lemon curd with fresh N.C. berries, cantaloupe, honey dew, watermelon and Chantilly cream with fresh mint

- Second place: Kornerstone Bistro – Roast peach, chevre and microgreens salad, chilled cantaloupe, N.C. crab and country ham soup, Dogwood Farms duck and pork confit roulade, fig chutney and summer vegetables, peanut panna cotta with peanut brittle crust and local honey

- Third place: Yancey House Restaurant – Smoked trout brushetta, rustic Tuscan tomato and bread salad, red onions, goat feta cheese, toasted herb Italian bread with balsamic dressing, black/red drum topped with shrimp and crab, lemon meuniere sauce and microgreens served with summer squash gratin, peach hand pies, blackberry ice cream with blackberry wine sauce

The Best Dish in NC competition is an annual statewide contest that recognizes and rewards the efforts of restaurants and chefs who use North Carolina products regularly in their menus. It also raises awareness about local foods, restaurants and chefs.

The 20 finalists were chosen based on their proposed menus and marketing plans for promoting the menu. Chefs were allowed to enter a combination of dishes (for example, an appetizer with an entrée and dessert), but each was judged as a single entry.

Competition finalists were required to feature the dishes in their restaurant for at least a four-week period in May, June or July for judging. Judges rated each restaurant on its use of North Carolina products, creativity, presentation,

To save costs, NCDA&CS moves to online soil tests and other agronomic reports

The N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services will no longer routinely mail out paper copies of agronomic reports. This policy, which went into effect Nov. 1, will apply to reports for soil tests and nematode assays, as well as plant tissue, waste, solution and soilless media analyses.

All these reports are readily available through the NCDA&CS Agronomic Division's Web site, www.ncagr.gov/agronomi.

"By making the switch to electronic-only reports, the NCDA&CS will work within its limited budget to save significantly on postage, printing and paper costs," said Dr. Colleen Hudak-Wise, director of the Agronomic Division. "Although environmental and fiscal benefits are driving this change, clients should also see increases in convenience and efficiency. Online reports are available to clients faster than mailed reports and make record keeping easier.

"Copies can be easily down-loaded and saved, and the analytical data can be exported into spreadsheet format," Hudak-Wise said.

Eventually, the NCDA&CS would like to notify all clients via e-mail when their reports are available online.

Clients who provide a valid e-mail address on their sample information form, or who register an e-mail address with the Agronomic Division online, can receive electronic notification. In the interim, all other clients will receive a postcard with instructions on how to find their reports.

Clients who visit the Agronomic Division home page should select the "Find Your Report" link from the left-column navigation bar. This link takes visitors into the division's laboratory-information site, known as PALS. For most people, using the "Quick Report Search" link is the most convenient way to access reports.

Basic instructions are outlined at www.ncagr.gov/agronomi/reportsearch.htm.

Anyone who has difficulty using the PALS report-search feature or has questions can call (919) 733-2655 for assistance during

The deadline for the January issue of the Agricultural Review is Dec. 1, and the deadline for the February issue is Jan. 4.
