Raleigh, N.C.

Ag Forum set for Aug. 27

Registration is open for the ninth annual Commissioner's Food Safety Forum, scheduled for Tuesday, Aug. 27, at the State Fairgrounds in Raleigh. The forum will take place from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. in the Expo Center.

Agriculture Commissioner Steve Troxler will host the event, which is open to farmers, food businesses, regulators, health professionals and others with an interest in food safety. Admission is free, and lunch will be provided.

Topics to be covered include new federal food safety rules, supply-chain verification for imported products, and the cost of implementing quality control. Scheduled speakers are Michael Taylor and Jenny Scott of the Food and Drug Administration, Michael Roberson of Publix Supermarkets, Matt Solana of Jackson Farming Co. and Dr. Richard Linton of N.C. State University.

Following lunch, there will be a breakout session focused on helping produce packers develop strategies for reducing the risk of food contamination and for handling such incidents if they occur. It will be conducted by N.C. State faculty and N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services staff.

China Tobacco International opens N.C. office

China's national tobacco company recently announced the opening of China Tobacco International of North America in North Carolina, said Agriculture Commissioner Steve Troxler.

Officials with China Tobacco International (North America) Co., Ltd. recently informed Troxler of the decision, citing his department's ongoing efforts to bolster trade relations with China with the decision to locate their office in the state. The company also has filed incorporation papers with the N.C. Department of the Secretary of State.

"Different tobacco-growing states wanted us to come. We choose North Carolina due to its advantages," said Madam Zhanhua Liang, president of China Tobacco International (North America) Co., Ltd. "It is better to be closer to the market and farmers. This department and the local governments give us tremendous help in the establishment of the company."

"China Tobacco's decision to open a company here is a major statement about how much it values North Carolina tobacco," Troxler said. "My staff and I have been working to boost exports of tobacco for several years now, and we think CTI's presence in our state will mean even more opportunities for our farmers."

The company is expected to serve as the base for CTI's North American leaf-buying operation. The company likely will buy from both leaf dealers and farmers, said Peter Thornton, assistant director for international marketing with the N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services.

"This office is a logical next step in China Tobacco's import process," Thornton said. "The U.S. is the last major tobacco supplier where China doesn't have a company."

North Carolina leads the nation in tobacco production. China has purchased $156.8 million worth of N.C. tobacco through April 2013, according to data from the World Institute for Strategic Economic Research. China is also a major tobacco-growing country. But along with its vigorous development of cig-

N.C. small-grain growers to vote on assessment Aug. 7

A farmer referendum on whether to continue an assessment on sales of seven types of grain will take place Aug. 7, the N.C. Small Grain Growers Association has announced.

The assessment amount would be half of 1 percent on sales of wheat, rye, oats, barley, rapeseed, canola and grain sorghum. The assessment period would run from Jan. 1, 2014, through Dec. 31, 2019.

All North Carolina small-grain growers who are at least 18 years old by Aug. 7 are eligible to vote during regular business hours at their local N.C. Cooperative Extension office. For more details, contact Dan Weathington, executive director of the association, at 919-809-8657.

"This assessment is important to the small grain growers of North Carolina to continue the work of the association in grower education, research, marketing and enhancing ways to grow small grain more profitably for farmers in North Carolina," said Clifton Paul of Grantsboro, the association's president.

The N.C. Board of Agriculture approved the association's request for the referendum at its Feb. 26 meeting.

by Agriculture Commissioner Steve Troxler

Commissioner Troxler

Recently, I joined Gov. Pat McCrory and several members of the legislature for a bill signing ceremony at the Capitol for the N.C. Farm Act of 2013. This was an important piece of legislation that clarified a number of laws of an agricultural nature and also included liability limitations for farm animal activities and for producers that are certified by the U.S. Department of Agriculture Good Agricultural Practices and the Good Handling Practices Audit Verification Program.

The N.C. Farm Act of 2013 had overwhelming support. It passed in the house with 109 voting yes and 3 voting no. It passed in the Senate with 41 voting yes and 3 voting no. The primary sponsors of the bill were Sens. Brent Jackson and Andrew Brock, with support of Reps. Jimmy Dixon and Chuck McGrady in the House.

The liability legislation for farm animal activities was important because of the inability of petting zoo owners and others working with farm animal exhibits to obtain insurance for their operations. Insurance costs are skyrocketing for those who operate farm animal activities.

This year, for the first time, we did not have a petting zoo at the Got to Be NC Festival because of the insurance issue.

Without liability limitations, we likely would also see ag education programs, such as the FFA, have to remove animals from their educational curriculum, which is not good.

It is important to teach children about raising farm animals and how to care for them, and I believe farm animal exhibits are important teaching tools.

This bill also limits the liability of North Carolina farmers who invest a lot of time and money in becoming certified by the USDA for Good Agricultural Practices and Good Handling Practices and have taken other steps to ensure food safety. It applies only to farmers selling to wholesalers and retailers. It does not apply to farmers selling directly to consumers.

Some producers may be familiar with an annual survey of users who withdraw 10,000 gallons of water per day or more for agricultural purposes. Such users were required to submit their data to our department annually. This bill changes that reporting cycle to every other year.

There is also a clarification for agritourism operations involving the use of farm buildings for public or private events such as weddings, receptions or meetings. Under this bill, the buildings used for these purposes can retain their farm building status, which clarifies a gray area in the law.

There are many other items covered in this bill. If you want to know more, it is referred to as Senate Bill 638.

This was the first time I have participated in a bill signing with a governor, and I was proud for North Carolina's leading industry to be recognized in such a way.

2012-2013 school year sets new record for N.C. Farm to School program

The N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services' Farm to School program continued to see strong growth as school systems across the state added more locally grown fruits and vegetables to school lunch menus. Sales jumped to $1.4 million this school year, up from $1.2 million in 2011-2012, a 16.6 percent increase.

"We have set a new sales record for the Farm to School Program for the second straight year, and I believe we will top $1.5 million in sales next school year," said Agriculture Commissioner Steve Troxler. "This year, 92 of the 117 school districts in the state participated in the program, which was also a record. We appreciate the support of child nutrition directors, schools and students in making this program a success."

Under the program, school systems across the state can order fresh North Carolina produce, which is coordinated and transported to schools by the NCDA&CS Food Distribution and Marketing divisions. Farm-fresh produce offered includes apples, blueberries, broccoli crowns, cabbage, cantaloupes, collards, cucumbers, peaches, romaine lettuce, squash, sprite melons, strawberries, sweet corn, sweet potatoes, tomatoes, watermelons and zucchini.

"I am proud that the Farm to School Program will be able to help schools meet new requirements to offer even more healthy options on lunch menus in the coming year," Troxler said.

In 2012-2013, 1,776 schools participated in the Farm to School program, ordering nearly 1.8 million pounds of fresh North Carolina produce. The program served more than 1 million students this year.

Among the biggest sellers were apples and apple slices, strawberries and sweet potatoes. For more on the Farm to School program, go to the Farm to School website at www.ncfarmtoschool.com.

NCFS: Wet-weather logging advisory issued for N.C.

The recent over-abundance of rainfall in North Carolina has helped to minimize wildfire risks, but it also has made logging much more difficult.

The N.C. Forest Service reminds loggers, timber buyers and forest owners to take extra precautions to prevent sediment or soil from washing into creeks, to prevent excessive rutting or compacting of saturated soil, and to keep ground disturbance to a minimum.

"The Forest Service has been busy inspecting logging sites around the state, and foresters and rangers have seen more problems lately, especially in areas with steeply sloped lands and soils that are prone to erosion," said Agriculture Commissioner Steve Troxler.

Common problems relate to:

- Inadequate control of rainfall runoff from skid trails and logging roads;
- Poorly established or improperly maintained stream crossings and skid trails;
- Ineffective soil stabilization and site rehabilitation.

In the logging industry, the measures and actions used to conserve soil and protect water quality are known as Best Management Practices. "The fundamental science behind forestry BMPs has been researched, field-tested and refined by forest scientists and industry experts for more than 75 years, and research is continuing," Troxler said.

The Forest Service has a comprehensive user's guide to assist loggers and other forestry professionals with identifying and installing BMPs. The North Carolina Forestry BMP Manual and its corresponding Field Guide are available from Forest Service offices and online at <http://ncforestservice.gov>.

During prolonged or extreme wet weather like North Carolina has been experiencing, loggers are encouraged to use all applicable forestry BMPs. The Forest Service offers the following tips:

Do not install new equipment crossings over a stream or creek. Access timber from the other side if possible.

Retain wider, undisturbed buffer zones of trees and vegetation alongside streams.

Apply leftover tree tops, limbs, branches and woody debris to skid trails to cover bare soil throughout the duration of the logging work. This can prevent soil damage and reduce the risk of sediment washing down the slope and into a stream.

Immediately apply ground-cover stabilization on sloping sections of skid trails, on top of roads and next to stream crossings when finished. Prepare for heavy, prolonged rains.

County Forest Service rangers can provide free BMP advice and pre-harvest planning assistance to support logging work. Interested individuals also should review the extensive library of BMP recommendations available on the website, including the latest BMP newsletter highlighting skid trail problems.

arett industry, the demand for American tobacco is strong thanks to its quality and flavor. The country is the state's No. 2 agricultural export market behind Japan.

Troxler led trade missions to China in 2009 and 2011 to build the state's relationship with the Asian country. The department also opened a trade office in Beijing in 2011. In addition to tobacco, China imports N.C. soybeans, cotton, poultry, pork and many other agricultural products.

N.C. State Fair announces 2013 concert lineup

Tickets go on sale online at www.ncstatefair.org on Aug. 1 at 10 a.m.

The 2013 State Fair fall concert lineup will feature performances by country, contemporary Christian and bluegrass musicians, along with a unique Michael Jackson tribute band.

Sister Hazel will kickoff the series on Thursday, Oct. 17. The alternative rock band has been entertaining since 1993 and has created such hits as "All for You" and "Change Your Mind."

Friday, Oct. 18, will feature two contemporary Christian artists, both of whom are Dove Award winners. Francesca Battistelli was a Grammy nominee, and is well known for her singles "This is the Stuff" and "Free to Be Me." The band Building 429, which includes Fayetteville natives, will perform such hits as "We Won't Be Shaken" and "Where I Belong."

Country music artist Joe Nichols will take the stage Saturday, Oct. 19. The Grammy-nominated musician is known for his hits "Gimme That Girl" and "Brokenheartsville."

Rising country duo Florida Georgia Line will bring their rocking show to Dorton on Oct. 20. Their popular songs "Cruise" and "Get Your Shine On" are current chart toppers.

North Carolina's own country star, Scotty McCreery, will perform Monday and Tuesday, Oct. 21 and 22. McCreery shot to fame by winning "American Idol" and followed up with several Country Music Association and Country Music Television awards. Now a student at N.C. State University, McCreery has hit the charts with "The Trouble with Girls" and "See You Tonight."

Bluegrass Band of the Year for 2013, Dailey and Vincent, will perform on Wednesday, Oct. 23. The group has also won many International Bluegrass Music Association awards.

The Ultimate Michael Jackson Tribute Band, Who's Bad, also native to North Carolina, will perform on Thursday, Oct. 24. The group was founded in 2005 and received the opportunity to play in 2010 at the London O2 arena, which was the venue for what would have been Jackson's final concert series.

Florida Georgia Line, Oct. 20, $10

Ultimate Michael Jackson Tribute Band, Who's Bad, Oct. 24, $5

Christian rock group MercyMe will perform Friday, Oct. 25. MercyMe has won several Dove and American Music Awards and is best known for the songs "I Can Only Imagine," "Spoken For" and "All of Creation."

Randy Houser, another country music artist, will perform Saturday, Oct. 26. Houser has co-written several songs for other artists, including Trace Adkin's "Honky Tonk Badonkadonk," and is also well known for his own hit singles "Anything Goes" and "How Country Feels."

The Eli Young Band will close out the 2013 N.C. State Fair concert series on Sunday, Oct. 27. The band won the 2012 Academy of Country Music award for Song of the Year for its hit "Crazy Girl."

Scotty McCreery, Oct. 21 and 22, $25

NCSF taking orders for seedlings

Catalogs at county ranger offices or online

The annual window of opportunity for ordering seedlings from the N.C. Forest Service Nursery Program is open.

"The Forest Service produces about 20 million quality seedlings for 54 species of both conifer and hardwoods each year at its nurseries, using solid nursery research and experience," said Agriculture Commissioner Steve Troxler. "The genetically superior Loblolly pine seedlings, for instance, are grown from seeds produced by orchard trees that are proven to give landowners increased growth and are more disease-resistant."

The Forest Service is selling hardwoods in quantities of 10 or more and conifers in quantities of 50 or more. For customers wishing to purchase larger orders, the nursery also sells tree seedlings by the hundreds and thousands. The nurseries also have a variety of Fraser products available from 1-year-old plugs ready to go into the field.

"These Fraser firs come from our best family genetics, which are selected based on color, form, fullness and USDA grade," said Greg Pate, state forester. "They are grown in greenhouses using deep well water, eliminating the chance of Phytophthora sp. fungus. Demand for these seedlings is up, so order early."

The Forest Service's nurseries in Goldsboro and Crossnore have a large catalog of tree seedlings. Landowners can find information about the types of tree species, quantities and costs on the inside page of the catalog. Each tree description includes information about ideal planting locations and whether a species is typically used for the benefit of wildlife, restoring habitats or as marketable timber.

Catalogs are available at Forest Service offices, which are located in all N.C. counties. It is also available online at <http://ncforestservice.gov>. Click on the "Tree Seedlings & Nursery Program" link.

Seedlings can be ordered online, by mail or by phone at 1-888-NCTREES (1-888-628-7337) using a Visa or MasterCard. To order by mail, complete an order form and send it to Seedling Coordinator, 762 Claridge Nursery Road, Goldsboro, NC 27530.

Distribution of seedlings begins in the fall, depending on weather conditions. Seedling orders are shipped to one of 13 locations statewide for free or via UPS for a charge.

N.C. Mountain State Fair promises Mountain Fun for Everyone Sept. 6-15

Fairgoers get ready for "Mountain Fun for Everyone" as the N.C. Mountain State Fair returns to Fletcher Sept. 6 - 15.

The traditions and heritage of the mountains will be celebrated with a clogging competition, the 2013 Mountain Music Festival and handmade crafts from local crafters. Visitors are also treated to the sights and sounds of the fair with food, agricultural shows, entertainment and rides.

Fairgoers can take a little time to browse the winners in fair competitions. Contests are held across three divisions: general exhibits and cooking contests; livestock shows; and music, dance and song.

Three agricultural exhibits will also be featured at this year's fair: Bill's Farm Adventure with hands-on barnyard activities for children; the return of the popular Mooternity Ward, where agricultural students along with veterinarians will help with several live births a day and narrate the birth events that occur during fair hours; and Agricadabra Presents: The Science of Ag where magician Brad Matchett brings agriculture to life in a fun and creative way.

The fair offers something for everyone with plenty of new and returning entertainers and exhibits. Highlights include: The Kenya Safari Acrobats, Sea Lion Splash, Kachunga and the Alligator Show, Chef Landry's Comedy Show, Rocketman - Human Cannonball, entertainer and musician Leon Jacobs Jr, Haywood Community College Timber Sports Team, Smoky Mountain Championship Wrestling, the Hogway Speedway and the talented cowgirls of the Dixie Starlight Express. The Heritage Music Stage and the Bojangles Music Stage will both feature musical entertainment nightly.

Admission for the fair is $8 for adults, $4 for seniors over 65 and children ages 6 to 12, and free for children 5 and under. The fair also offers a family fun pack for $35 that includes five admission tickets, tickets for four rides and a selection of food coupons. Save $2 per ticket and 50 percent off ride tickets by buying your tickets in advance at Ingles, WNC Ag Center and the Western NC Farmer's Market.

More information, including hours, special event days and other promotions, is available online at www.mountainfair.org or call 828-687-1414.

N.C. Farm Act

I have said many times that I believe we can grow agriculture into a $100 billion industry, and good governmental policy is one of the keys.

I am especially proud that the Governor has taken an interest in agriculture and agribusiness and that he understands the potential growth and economic impact of this industry to our economy.
