Agricultural Review returns to 12 issues a year

The Agricultural Review is returning to a monthly publication, meaning subscribers will once again receive 12 issues of the newspaper every year. For a number of years and because of budgetary reasons, we have printed a combined November and December issue of the paper.

Because of this change, advertisers will need to be aware of new deadlines for the November and December issues. The deadline for submitting ads for the November issue is Oct. 1, while the deadline for the December issue will be Nov. 3.

You can also find reminders about upcoming deadlines on page 4 at the beginning of the ads.

EDITOR'S NOTE:

We wanted to correct a date for the Richmond County Agricultural Fair that was incorrect in the August issue of the newspaper.

The Richmond County Agricultural Fair will be held Oct. 7-11 in Hamlet.

The event is held by the Hamlet Lion's Club.

Mountain State Fair fun slated Sept. 5-14

The N.C. Mountain State Fair returns to the Western N.C. Ag Center in Fletcher Sept. 5-14 with fun activities for the whole family. Fairgoers will find many of their favorite tried-and-true fair traditions along with several new grounds entertainers.

Fairgoers will need to look up to see two of the new acts at the Mountain State Fair – Stilt Puppets and K9s in Flight. The Stilt Puppets are brightly colored, intricately designed animals and mythical creatures moving and dancing through the crowd. The performers make the animal puppets move independently, while balancing the puppets and themselves on stilts.

Livestock shows are popular events at the N.C. Mountain State Fair in Fletcher.

New fees set for NC Forest Service woodland plans

Budget approved by General Assembly mandated change

The state budget approved by the state General Assembly directed the N.C. Forest Service to start charging for woodland plans, which are commonly referred to as forest management plans. The budget bill allowed the N.C. Board of Agriculture to review and approve the fees, which it did in August.

With the budget and fee schedule in place, the N.C. Forest Service is once again preparing woodland plans. The agency had put a moratorium in place to allow time for the fee system to be developed and for training of agency staff to occur.

“The North Carolina Forest Service has been helping protect, manage and promote North Carolina’s forests for nearly 100 years,” said Agriculture Commissioner Steve Troxler. “They have a lot of experience assisting woodland owners with valuable and tax-saving management advice. I believe the Board of Agriculture approved reasonable fees that will allow the N.C. Forest Service to continue delivering the professional services its customers have come to expect.”

Landowners who have requested a woodland plan can expect to be contacted by N.C. Forest Service staff to discuss their objectives and how the agency can be of assistance. This will likely include a discussion about the types of woodland plans, their benefits and the related fee.

Woodland plans will have a base charge of $45. In addition to that base charge, there will be a fee of $3 per acre for forest management plans and forest stewardship plans, both of which are comprehensive plans. Practice (See Woodland plan fee, pg. 8)

Commissioner Troxler

I don't know about you, but it has been a busy summer. It's hard to believe, but fall is just around the corner and the N.C. State Fair is a month away.

I hope over the course of this summer, you have been able to enjoy the bounty of harvest that our farmers grow in North Carolina. Farmers markets across the state, roadside stands, grocery stores and community supported agriculture programs remain full of summer commodities fresh

by Agriculture Commissioner Steve Troxler

from North Carolina farms.

And that freshness translates into great-tasting food.

To share that message and in celebration of July being Got to Be NC Month, we started a new advertising campaign focusing on foods “Grown.Raised. Caught.Made.” in North Carolina. I hope you may have seen commercials for our Got to Be NC program. We want to increase awareness of what farmers grow, what foods agribusinesses produce and what seafood and aquaculture is harvested in the state.

There are still a lot of commodities to enjoy from apples and tomatoes to collards and zucchini, sweet potatoes and muscadine grapes. Be sure to take advantage of this delicious variety before the season for some of these comes to an end. Remember, when you want the best, it's Got to Be NC.

On a more somber note, I want to mention the passing of one of our Forest Service co-workers who was killed in an accident while serving his fellow North Carolinians.

Jimmy Halliburton, 31, was an education ranger at Tuttle Educational State Forest in Lenoir. Jimmy worked with the Forest Service for nearly 11 years, seven of those serving at Tuttle Forest where he worked with school children and the public to help them better understand our state's forests and natural resources.

As a father of two, I am sure Jimmy took great pride in sharing his love of the forest and nature with kids.

At the N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services, employees are like family. Many of our employees have spent their entire careers in state government here with the department, and there is a closeness and bond that exists.

We share in his family's grief, lift them up in our prayers and extend our sincere condolences.

Jimmy Halliburton

North Carolina sees first cases of EEE in horses

Three horses were confirmed as having died after contracting Eastern Equine Encephalomyelitis within the past few weeks. EEE is a mosquito-borne disease that is preventable in equine by vaccination.

The unvaccinated horses – an 18-month-old Paint from Carteret County, an 11-year-old Quarter horse from New Hanover County and a 3-year-old Quarter horse from Bladen County – exhibited signs of generalized weakness, stumbling, depression and inability to stand or eat. The Carteret County horse was euthanized July 21, and the Bladen County horse died Aug. 2. The New Hanover horse was euthanized on Aug. 5.

They are the first reported cases of EEE in horses in North Carolina this year. Earlier this summer, New Hanover County officials reported that the disease was found in a sentinel chicken flock. The state recorded 15 EEE cases in horses in 2013.

“If your horses exhibit any symptoms of EEE, contact your veterinarian immediately,” said State Veterinarian David Marshall. “Several serious conta-rious diseases, such as West Nile virus, equine herpes virus and rabies, have similar symptoms and should be ruled out.”

EEE causes inflammation or swelling of the brain and spinal cord and is usually fatal. Symptoms include impaired vision, aimless wandering, head pressing, circling, inability to swallow, irregular staggering gait, paralysis, convulsions and death. Once a horse has been bitten by an infected mosquito, it may take three to 10 days for signs of the disease to appear.

Marshall recommends that equine owners talk to their veterinarians about an effective vaccination protocol to protect horses from EEE and another mosquito-borne disease, West Nile virus.

The vaccinations initially require two shots, 30 days apart, for horses, mules and donkeys that have no prior vaccination history. Marshall recommends a booster shot every six months.

Mosquitoes can breed in any puddle that lasts for more than four days, so removing any source of standing water can reduce the chance of exposing animals to WNV or EEE. Keeping horses in stalls at night, using insect screens and fans and turning off lights after dusk can also help reduce exposure to mosquitoes. Insect repellants can be effective if used according to manufacturers’ instructions.

People, horses and birds can become infected from a bite by a mosquito carrying the diseases, but there is no evidence that horses can transmit the viruses to other horses, birds or people through direct contact.

The event features gourds from around the world, special gourd workshops, competitions and vendors selling dried gourds, gourd seeds, gourd crafts, gourd art, books and crafting supplies. There is a live auction on Saturday at noon and also a free gourd crafting table for kids. Details about the festival, a listing of workshops and information on how to enter the competitions can be found at www.ncgourdsociety.org/festival. Admission is $2 for adults, and free for children under 16, workshop students and N.C. Gourd Society members. For more, contact Kate Mahony, festival chair, at tolecat@nc.rr.com or 910-639-4577.

Two Johnston County horse show series, one an open class and the second a hunter class, have been announced. The hunter show dates are Sept. 6 and Nov. 8. Following are open horse show dates: Sept. 20, Oct. 25 and Nov. 22. Events are held at the Johnston County Livestock Arena in Smithfield. For more, go to www.blaine-mclaughlin-stables.com or call Michele McLaughlin at 919-934-1344.

As a way to help farmers and agricultural workers stay safe at work, the N.C. Department of Labor offers safety videos on a variety of topics through its YouTube channel. Video topics include: preventing green tobacco sickness, hazard communication, tobacco harvester safety, heat stress, migrant housing requirements, forklift safety, and information about the NCDOL’s Gold Star Growers program. The videos are in English and Spanish to increase understanding of safety hazards and preventing accidents. To learn more about the NCDOL and the Agricultural Safety and Health Bureau, go to www.nclabor.com or call 1-800-NC-LABOR (800-625-2267). NCDOL is also on Facebook and Twitter (@NCDOL).

NCDA&CS to host food tasting event for NC food entrepreneurs

Deadline to register is Sept. 9

The Taste of Something Good event, aimed at helping individuals or businesses that have been selling a food product for at least 12 months, will take place in Charlotte and Burlington in October.

The cost of the event is $20, which covers lunch and handout materials. Space is limited to the first 16 people registered, and all food products must be branded and processed under all applicable regulations.

The events are sponsored by the N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services.

The Charlotte workshop will be held Thursday, Oct. 2, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Charlotte/Mecklenburg Cooperative Extension office. The Burlington workshop will be held Wednesday, Oct. 8, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Alamance County Cooperative Extension office.

"These workshops will offer a new opportunity for food processors to learn ways to market their products," said Agriculture Commissioner Steve Troxler. "Consumers are very interested in buying local, and through workshops like these we hope to support more entrepreneurs who want to build their food product businesses."

Workshop attendees can expect to share their food products with other food producers and receive feedback in the areas of appearance, odor, taste, texture, packaging, branding and overall perception. An afternoon session will discuss ways to get more customers and communicate your brand more effectively. This session will also include recommendations on increasing brand awareness and how to improve profitability.

Registration runs through Sept. 9. A registration form is available at www.ncagr.gov/markets/agribiz. A completed marketing plan must be submitted with your registration and payment. For more information contact Annette Dunlap, NCDA&CS food business specialist, at 919-707-3117 or

K9s in Flight is a high-flying, feel good dog show that has been seen on The Discovery Channel, ESPN, Animal Planet, HBO and The Disney Channel. Trainer John Misita works with rescued dogs or ones adopted from shelters to perform spectacular Frisbee catches, long jumps into water, and running, jumping and obedience tricks.

"We have been blessed with back-to-back record-setting attendance years, which tells us people love the Mountain State Fair," said Fair Manager Matt Buchanan. "We are happy to showcase the best that Western North Carolina has to offer each year along with entertainment that you won't see everywhere."

Returning acts include the ever-popular racing pigs and critters of Hogway Speedway, the Agricadabra Magic Show, the dynamic tumbling of Kenya Safari Acrobats, Sea Lion Splash sponsored by Bojangles, music by Leon Jacobs Jr. and the precision horseback routines set to music by Dixie Starlight Express. Also returning is the Mooternity Ward, where fair visitors can see the birth of a calf, and nightly performances of Appalachian music on the Heritage Stage.

Fair food is a popular draw and the more over-the-top and deep-fried, the better it seems visitors like it. Add a stick, and the concoction steps it up another level. Some of the items to look for on a stick at the Mountain State Fair include fried pineapple, pork chop, deep-fried Milky Way bars, cheesecake, fried peanut butter and jelly sandwich and fried pickles.

The fair offers more than $240,000 in premiums, plus bragging rights, in the agricultural, arts and crafts, cooking and handicraft competitions. Visitors will see canned goods, quilts, hand-sewn clothing, wood carvings, photography, jewelry, flowers and landscaping displays.

Organizers offer several special promotions and discount days during the fair. On Friday, Sept. 5, students K-12 get in for free until 6 p.m. Later, from 9 p.m. until 1 a.m., admission and unlimited rides is $20.

On Monday, Sept. 8, and Thursday, Sept. 11, visitors can ride all day for $20.

On Wednesday, Sept. 10, guests get free gate admission with five cans of Laura Lynn brand foods from Ingles supermarkets. Donations support the MANNA Food Bank.

On Friday, Sept. 12, there is free admission for seniors 65 and older. Later, from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m., admission and unlimited rides is $20.

Tickets are $8 for adults, $4 for kids 6 to 12 years old and seniors 65 and up. A special Family Fun Pack is $35 and includes five admission tickets, tickets for four rides and vendor coupons.

For more about the fair, go to www.mountainfair.org

The midway at the Mountain State Fair comes alive with fairgoers after dark. Check out the livestock shows, exhibits, music, clogging competition, food and more Sept. 5-14. Find out more about the fair at www.mountainfair.org.

August AgroTips

Test your bulk soilless potting media before planting greenhouse crops.

Before planting greenhouse crops, propagating woody plants or beginning seasonal flower production, commercial producers should sample and test the bulk soilless media they plan to grow their plants in. The procedure, known as saturated media extract, measures nutrient concentration, electrical conductivity and pH. The cost is $5 per sample for North Carolina residents and $25 for out-of-state residents, and test results are available online two working days after samples are checked in to the laboratory. Sampling instructions and sample information forms can be found online at www.ncagr.gov/agronomi/uyrmedia.

Prepare gardens for fall/winter.

First, if you haven't had your soil tested in the last three years, now is the time to do it. Instructions for collecting samples are online at www.ncagr.gov/agronomi/uyrst.htm#sampling. Act now because after October the lab will begin receiving end-of-season samples from farmers, and the wait for reports will be longer.

If your report indicates that lime should be applied to raise soil pH, don't delay. Winter soil is usually moist and helps lime neutralize soil acidity before spring planting. However, don't add lime unless the soil report recommends it. Excess lime can make some nutrients unavailable to plants.

Second, consider protecting garden soils by planting a cover crop or putting out mulch. Legumes, such as crimson clover, hairy vetch and Austrian winter pea, add nitrogen to the soil as well as organic matter when they decompose in the spring. In addition, crimson clover produces beautiful blooms. Another option is to plant greens such as mustard or kale and enjoy eating the small leaves as they grow.

If you don't plant a cover crop, you should apply a two-inch layer of mulch, such as composted leaf material, shredded or chipped pine bark or pine needles. Straw can also be used if it is good quality without weed seeds. The mulch should be thick enough to reduce weed seed germination and retain soil moisture without impeding adequate water and air movement.

Once you have made these preparations, do not apply fertilizer until spring unless you are planting a fall vegetable garden. In that case, you can still follow these suggestions, but you will also need to apply fertilizer as recommended on your soil report.

Advance NC State Fair tickets on sale now

Budget-conscious N.C. State Fair fans will want to take advantage of discount admission and ride tickets on sale now to save money and time at the gate.

Advance tickets to the N.C. State Fair are on sale through Oct. 16, offering significant savings to fairgoers. Adult admission is $7 in advance compared to $9 at the gate, kids 6-12 are $3 in advance compared to $4 at the gate, and a sheet of 18 ride tickets are $10 in advance versus $18 at the fair. Most rides require between three and six tickets per ride.

"It's hard to beat the savings from buying tickets in advance, and having your tickets in hand when you arrive at the fair means you can spend more time inside the gates enjoying the activities and shows with your friends and family," said Agriculture Commissioner Steve Troxler.

Tickets can be purchased online at www.ncstatefair.org. Sales at satellite locations will run Oct. 2-16. All sites will accept cash, Visa or Mastercard.

Following are walk-up locations:

- N.C. State Fairgrounds, Trinity Road, Raleigh (sales will also be open Sept. 20 & 27)
- N.C. Museum of History, Downtown Raleigh, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.
- State Farmers Market, 1201 Agriculture St., Raleigh, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.
- Triangle Town Center, Raleigh, check for times
- Holly Hill Mall, Burlington, check for times
- Lynn's Hallmark Shop, Eastgate Shopping Center, Chapel Hill; 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., M-S; noon to 6 p.m. Sundays

NCDA&CS agronomists help farmers with field issues

GROVER – First-generation farmer Jason Rhodes is not afraid to try something new. Over the past 15 years, he has grown more than 12 crops under five different production systems at Rhodesdale Farm. He currently produces about 650 acres of mixed seasonal produce and row crops.

Rhodes began farming part time in 1999 with an ornamental plant nursery. He went full time in 2002, adding cattle and soybeans to his operation. That same year, he planned ahead and planted five acres of blueberries and an acre of asparagus, crops that take several years before they start producing.

When the economic downturn in 2009 caused him to close the nursery, Rhodes shifted his focus to growing produce for local market. By 2012, he was selling an assortment of tomatoes, peppers (cayenne, jalapeño, habañero), squash, crowder peas, cucumbers, asparagus, garlic, cantaloupes, strawberries, blueberries, peaches and muscadine grapes.

Rhodes says crop diversity is important from a business perspective, even if that philosophy doesn't always translate into dollars. "I've found that cucumbers are not an economical crop," he said, "but we grow them to meet the customer demand at our roadside stand."

Last year, Rhodes converted several greenhouses from his nursery so he and his wife, Shelley, could produce tomatoes year round. This was also his first year growing garlic. In the past two years, Rhodes has added milo and canola to his field crop rotation. He is already talking about wanting to try his hand at popcorn and cotton and maybe even aquaculture trout production.

"When I wake up, farming is what I think about, and when I go to sleep, farming is what I think about," Rhodes said. "I like what I do and that is priceless." Rhodes will tell you frankly that one of the reasons he likes farming is because he does not like to be told what to do. Even so, when it comes to making sure that his lime and fertilizer applications are correct, he listens attentively to Steve Dillon, regional agronomist with the N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services. It is not unusual for Rhodes to call Dillon three times a week.

"Steve does the math for me to make sure I'm thinking right (with respect to fertilizer application rates)," Rhodes said. Dillon said he is happy to double-check Rhodes' fertilizer calculations. "A small error can mean too much fertilizer and wasted money, or too little fertilizer and reduced crop yield," Dillon said. "No matter what crop you grow, it is imperative to get soil pH and nutrient levels correct to prevent potential problems

High-value crops such as fruits and vegetables require intensive nutrient management. Since fertilizer is applied daily or weekly, is it important to sample the plant tissue to ensure that nutrient applications are on target.

"I have been working with Jason for 12 to 14 years, and he is always coming up with new ideas, which is a great challenge for me," Dillon said. "It's exciting to hear his latest plan and then help him carry it out."

The Field Services Section of the Agronomic Services Division has 13 regional agronomists throughout the state. They are available to visit or consult with growers who need help taking agronomic samples, adjusting fertilizer programs, pinpointing nutrient deficiencies or toxicities, identifying nematode problems, or interpreting agronomic report

For more information or for the name of the regional agronomist in your area, call Michelle McGinnis at 919-733-2655 or visit www.ncagr.gov/agronomi/rahome.htm.

Season 4 of 'Flavor, NC' set for UNC-TV

"Flavor, NC," the popular local food program hosted by Lisa Prince, a marketing specialist with the N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services, is set to air Season 4 later this month on UNC-TV.

Check UNC-TV's website for more information or follow Flavor, NC on Facebook to see behind-the-scenes shots and sneak-peeks of upcoming episodes.

To help viewers get excited about the start of the new season, we thought we would revisit the last episode of Season 3 and share the Tomato Pie recipe featured in the episode, especially since tomatoes are still abundant. Enjoy the recipe, and be sure to tune into "Flavor, NC" on UNC-TV.

In this episode, Prince highlights pie recipes from PieBird in Raleigh that feature locally grown ingredients purchased at the State Farmers Market and the Raleigh City Farm.

The Raleigh City Farm is a one-acre urban farm in the heart of Raleigh. Many area restaurants, including PieBird, use the farm for locally-sourced ingredients. In fact, vegetables gathered from the Raleigh City Farm are so local, they are often delivered on foot.

The State Farmers Market is open year-round and offers seasonally available produce, meats and more at its farmers building and Market Shoppes. The market also offers a wholesalers building. The NCDA&CS operates four markets located in Raleigh, Greensboro, Charlotte and Asheville.

PieBird opened its doors in March 2011 with an emphasis on all things pie. The restaurant is open for lunch and dinner Tuesday through Saturday, serving a wide selection of savory and sweet pies made with locally grown ingredients. PieBird also offers whole pies to go.

The following recipe is for Tomato Pie, which can utilize all those great tomatoes that are fresh this time of year.

Tomato Pie

Butter Crust ingredients:

3 cups all-purpose flour
1 1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 pound chilled butter, cut into small pieces (lard can be substituted)
1/2 cup chilled shortening

Directions:

Sift flour and salt into a medium bowl. Add butter and shortening, and cut into flour with a pastry blender or two knives until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Stir in 4 to 5 tablespoons of ice water, until dough just holds together. Divide into two uneven balls: two-thirds for the bottom crust and one-third for the top. Pat each into a disk and wrap in plastic. Refrigerate for 1 hour to allow the dough to rest. Roll out on a floured surface to fit a 9-inch pie pan.

Filling Ingredients:

6 ounces goat cheese	2-3 large, fresh tomatoes, sliced
1/2 cup mayonnaise	1 small red onion, thinly sliced
1/2 cup Gruyere cheese, grated	Fresh basil
2 tablespoons hot sauce	Salt and pepper to taste
1/2 cup flour

Directions:

Mix goat cheese, mayo, Gruyere, hot sauce, flour, salt and pepper to taste in a large bowl. Place one layer of red onions in unbaked pie crust. Top with one layer of sliced tomatoes and a layer of basil, pour the filling over the layers and then top with another layer of sliced tomatoes. Sprinkle with more Gruyere cheese. Remaining pie crust can be used to make lattice strips on top or decorative cutouts on the pie crust edges. (In the episode, small flower-shaped pieces were used.)

Bake 20 to 30 minutes at 350 degrees.

Woodland plan fee

plans, which are simpler plans that usually address just one management practice, will cost $2 per acre in addition to the base fee.

If a landowner decides to have the N.C. Forest Service prepare a woodland plan, a simple one-page agreement will be signed. Once the woodland plan is prepared, the plan and an invoice will be sent to the landowner for payment. Payment options will initially include check or money orders, with an online payment system becoming another option this Fall.

The N.C. Forest Service offers a wide variety of forestry programs and services that are still free of charge.

There are many financial and environmental benefits that come with having a woodland plan. Certain types of plans can qualify the landowner for participation in the state's Forestry Present Use Valuation Program, resulting in significant property tax reductions. The tax savings realized in the first year alone are usually more than enough to cover the cost of a woodland plan. Woodland plan preparation fees can also be considered a deductible management expense for annual tax purposes.

Woodland plans provide detailed forestry recommendations, but they can also provide landowners with advice on wildlife habitat, soil and water protection, recreation opportunities and aesthetics. They can also help qualify landowners for forestry recognition programs, including forest certification. Landowners interested in leaving a legacy for their family should start by having a woodland plan that outlines how best to achieve their current and future goals.

Landowners interested in state or federal cost-share programs typically need an approved woodland plan. Participation in many of these programs results in a cost savings of 40 percent or more, depending on the program. Cost-share payments help to reduce the initial capital investment needed for many forestry projects, which leads to higher overall financial returns to the woodland owner.

Landowners interested in getting forestry advice and a woodland plan should begin by contacting their local county ranger for more details. Click on the "Contact Us" section of the N.C. Forest Service's website (<http://ncforestservice.gov>) for county information. Landowners also can call the agency's central office at 919-857-4801 for assistance.

The website also contains detailed information on forestry programs and services available to landowners, including a "Frequently Asked Questions" section addressing woodland plans.
